In identifying and classifying items I have used all the bibliographical aids available in the various libraries. The most valuable have been M.B. Emeneau's A Union List of Printed Indic Texts and Translations in American Libraries; Aufrecht's Catalogus Catalogorum and several of the catalogues therein; the Catalogue of the Sanskrit Manuscripts in the Library of the India Office - Vol. I by J. Eggeling and Vol. II in two parts by Dr. A. Berriedale Keith with Professor F. W. Thomas's supplement; P. V. Kane's History of Dharmaśāstra, Vol. I; Grierson's Modern Vernacular Literature of Hindustan; the Annual Report on the Search for Hindi Manuscripts in six volumes (1900-6) by Syam Sundar Das; The First Triennial Report on the Search for Hindi Manuscripts for the years 1906, 1907, and 1908 by Syam Sundar Das; The Second Triennial Report on the Search for Hindi Manuscripts for the years 1909, 1910, and 1911 by Shyam Behari Misra; The Third Triennial Report on the Search for Hindi Manuscripts for the year 1912, 1913, and 1914 by Shyam Behari Misra assisted by Shukdeo Behari Misra; Guérinot's Essai de bibliographie jaina; Renou's Bibliographie Védique; and Geiger's Pāli Literatur and Sprache.

Others referred to are Winternitz's Geschichte der indischen Litteratur (of volumes one and two the English edition, A History of Indian Literature); a Descriptive Catalogue of the Sanskrit Manuscripts in the Government Collection under the care of the Asiatic Society of Bengal by Mm. Haraprasad Shāstrī; J. F. Blumhardt's Catalogue of the Bengali and Assamese Manuscripts in the Library of the India Office, his Catalogue of the Hindi, Panjabi, and Hindustani Manuscripts in the Library of the British Museum, and his Catalogue of the Marathi, Gujarati, Bengali, Assamese, Oriya, Pushtu, and Sindhi Manuscripts in the Library of the British Museum; A. Cabaton's Catalogue Sommaire des Manuscrits Sanscrits et Pālis in two volumes and his Catalogue Sommaire des Manuscrits Indiens Indo-Chinois et Malayo-Polynésiens; H. D. Velankar's Descriptive Catalogue of Saṃskṛta and Prākṛta Manuscripts in the Library of the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society in four volumes; L. D. Barnett's Catalogue of Burmese Books in the British Museum and his Catalogue of the Tamil Books in the Library of the British Museum; A. K. Coomaraswamy's Catalogue of the Indian Collections in the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston; and a Catalogue of Pāli, Siṃhalese and Sanskrit Manuscripts in the Colombo Museum Library. Among others consulted were: List of Sanskrit, Jaina and Hindi Manuscripts Purchased by Order of Government and Deposited in the Sanskrit College, Benares; List of Sanskrit and Hindi Manuscripts Purchased by Order of Government and Deposited in the Sanskrit College, Benares; Hṛishikeśa Śāstri's Descriptive Catalogue of Sanskrit Manuscripts in the Library of the Calcutta Sanskrit College; A Descriptive Catalogue of Sanskrit Manuscripts of the Government Oriental Manuscripts Library, Madras; A Catalogue of Sanskrit Manuscripts in the Adyar Library by the Pandits of the Library; Don Martino De Zilva Wickremasinghe's Catalogue of the Sinhalese Manuscripts in the British Museum; and P. P. S. Sastri's Descriptive Catalogue of the Sanskrit Manuscripts in the Tanjore Maharaja

a complete list either of the many printed catalogues of Indic scripts or of those available to the compiler. Handwritten and catalogues of individual collections in America were consulted available.

It must be obvious that in this compilation, involving so languages, dialects, and scripts, there are errors more serious the merely typographical. The compiler pleads exigencies of time admits a lack of the knowledge necessary to handle adequately the material. Approximately three and one-half years were spent travel and compilation, preparation of the manuscript, and all dental work. Catalogues of varying degrees of correctness existed only a few of the collections. In the case of the majority of the betan manuscripts and Sinhalese medical ola the titles offered in catalogues were accepted; in all other cases, when possible the appearing in each manuscript has been checked. The compiler responsibility for all errors, but hopes that the usefulness of the may dim these to some extent. The appearance of unidentified items regretted. In the handling of somewhat unfamiliar scripts and either the fragmentary condition of the manuscripts involved or ty to find a colophon or title within a limited amount of time made necessary to leave the problem of identification unsolved.

The distribution of the manuscripts may be of interest to The two largest collections are found in the Library of the of Pennsylvania and in the Widener Library at Harvard University, most 3000 at the former and about 2500 at the latter. Between one dred and three hundred approximately are found at the Sterling of Yale University, including the American Oriental Society's on deposit there, Columbia University, the Library of Congress, ton University, including the Gest Oriental Library in the for Advanced Study, and the McGill University Libraries. Of numbering under one hundred the largest belong to the Boston Fine Arts, Mr. Robert Garrett, Mr. Manly P. Hall, the Heeramaneck leries, the Johns Hopkins University, including the Institute of History of Medicine, the Newberry Library, and the New York Library.

INTRODUCTION

The list includes all manuscripts in Sanskrit, Pali, Prakrit, the older and modern stages of the vernaculars, various Dravidian languages, and the languages of Greater India, including Burma, Ceylon, Siam, and Tibet. The complete list can be found in the Table of Contents. For the most part only texts composed before 1800 A.D. have been included. Batak, Bugis, and Malay manuscripts were not systematically sought for, but those encountered are noted.

These American manuscripts are especially rich in Jain texts, the bulk of which are found at Harvard. It can be readily ascertained by glancing through this list and M. B. Emeneau's A Union List of Printed Indic Texts and Translations in American Libraries that even among the canonical Jain works the manuscript collection contains items not found in any American library in printed form. The large number of unedited and interesting late texts on religious law add further to the merits of the American collections. The large and important group of grammatical texts at the University of Pennsylvania deserve special mention. A fair number of manuscripts are illustrated, enough to cover the field of Indian miniature painting, and here again the Jain list is especially noteworthy. The museum and private collections add greatly to the variety of manuscript materials and forms as well as to the artistic and historical value of the list.

The list is arranged by languages with sub-divisions by subject-matter, the main division coming between the Sanskrit and Vernacular texts. Within each class items are arranged following the Sanskrit alphabet in two separate groups: first by authors, then by works without authors. The end of the first group is indicated by a horizontal line across the page. This arrangement is varied in the Vedic section, where the traditional order is followed, except that in the Sūtra and Late Ritual sections the above order prevails. In the Upaniṣad section the listing is wholly alphabetical. Also in the case of Jain and Buddhist canonical texts the traditional order is generally followed. Unidentified manuscripts come last in their respective classes.

In the Vernacular list only the following manuscripts are classified: Burmese, Hindi, Pali, Prakrit, Bhāṣā, Siamese, and Sinhalese. Sinhalese medical ola are arranged alphabetically by depositories. This is also true of a few other groups and will be readily recognizable. If elsewhere the above arrangements are departed from, the reason should always be apparent.

In each article the title (or titles) is followed by the number of folios, the size of the folios to the nearest tenth of an inch, the number of lines of writing per side, the date (if any) of copying, the name of the copyist (if any), bibliographical references (if any), the indication of the library or owner, and finally the library number of the manuscript (if any). This order is almost invariable, with only occasional changes for clarity which should not be confusing. Additional information, such as the beginning of a manuscript, the colophon, etc., is sometimes added as a further aid to complete identification.

In the case of alternative titles, the preferred (in the judgment of the compiler) appears first, in brackets if it does not appear in the manuscript. The title given in the manuscript always appears without brackets or parentheses. Parentheses are used for alternative titles not appearing in the manuscript. A question mark in parentheses after a title means that the reading is questioned. A question mark alone indicates that the compiler has supplied the title but is not sure it is correct. If no serial number appears before the name of a text, that text has been listed merely for the sake of the following commentary.

Unless it is otherwise stated, the script is Devanāgarī, the material paper, and the form the usual manuscript form. The abbreviation pp., however, in the indication of pagination means that the manuscript is in book form, barring a statement to the contrary. In the indication of foliation 31 ff., e.g., means that the folios are numbered from 1-31. Number-words are used instead of numerals when the foliation is very irregular or is lacking. The numbering of folios by letters has in all cases been changed to numbers. Broken foliation is recorded exactly. A manuscript is complete unless it is otherwise stated, except that the indication of broken foliation signifies breaks. If broken foliation appears and the text is nevertheless complete, this fact is noted. Manuscripts begin and end despite the foliation unless there is a remark to the contrary. When it is said that a manuscript lacks beginning or end, these terms are flexible and indicate little more than which end of the manuscript is missing. Exact statements of contents are sometimes included where the compiler judged them necessary.

A selected bibliography is offered. An asterisk before a title means that the compiler was not able to trace the item in the bibliography used. However, if the contents of the article are sufficient to prove impossibility of identification the asterisk is not used. This is also true of some works considered too insignificant to warrant taking the time to trace them thoroughly in catalogues. The word "a" before a title means that the title appears several times in the catalogues used, but that exact identification was not made. A title without "a" or asterisk can easily be identified by the user, particularly in Aufrecht's Catalogus Catalogorum, the India Office Catalogue, and M. B. Emeneau's Union List of Printed Indic Texts and Translations in American Libraries.

Names of authors are featured in separate lines at the head of their works. When there are several titles for one author, his name is given only once at the head of the first text, except where the division between texts with and those without authors is forsaken, as in the case of traditional order, when the name of the author is repeated before each article. Brackets around an author's name indicate that it does not occur in the manuscript. Accepted alternate spellings of authors' names also appear in brackets after the preferred spelling if they do not appear in the manuscript. Peculiar spellings offered by the manuscripts appear in the articles in parentheses without punctuation, immediately after the title or titles. The spellings of copyists' names are offered exactly as they appear in the manuscripts.

Titles are capitalized. Section titles are placed directly after main titles and are capitalized. In Epic sections parvan and section titles appear first in each article. When there is more than one manuscript of the same work, "id." is used after the first to indicate that the title and work of the item so introduced is exactly the same as the preceding. Where different works with same title appear in proximity the full title is repeated to indicate the fact. Commentaries, subcommentaries, etc. not accompanied by texts are designated by the signs "C," "CC," "CCC," etc. If a commentary appears in conjunction with a text, it is not featured but is noted in the text article. The abbreviation "ib." in an article means that the information to be supplied is exactly the same as that in the corresponding position in the preceding article.

With regard to classification it should be noted that under Religious Law come a number of texts which are usually placed under late Vedic ritual. Because of some knowledge of these texts the compiler considers them so late and frequently so non-Vedic as to warrant the shift.

On the basis of the major classification by languages it was deemed better to separate Jain and Buddhist manuscripts as their languages dictated rather than to group them all together in one place.

The Hindi manuscripts, of which the majority are at Harvard University, comprise items from all periods of the dialects known collectively as Hindi. It was not possible for the compiler to describe each item accurately with regard to dialect and period, and he therefore elected to describe none. The spelling of Hindi titles and words is usually as it occurs in the manuscripts, with no corrections ventured except in cases where copyists' mistakes seemed most obvious. These dialects show amazing peculiarities which cannot always be considered copyists' errors. Undoubtedly some of the Hindi texts grouped as Miscellaneous and Unclassified should be more carefully classified, but the compiler took the position, "When in doubt, say nothing."

A number of errors of omission and commission were discovered in the list at a time when it was too late to rectify them in the text, so it has been necessary to insert a page of errata, as well as to give cross-references and appropriate remarks throughout the list, which latter will, it is hoped, atone in some measure.

The Appendix consists of uncatalogued collections of fragmentary and unexamined manuscripts, and is arranged alphabetically by depositories.

The Index of Authors and Titles lists all authors and titles and their variants with complete cross-reference. It and the list should always be used together, the one to supplement the other. Non-Indic titles are listed according to the Sanskrit alphabet with ph and f under ph, w under v, and z at the end of the s items. Unidentified manuscripts listed under languages or class in their proper alphabetical position should be consulted in the list for their possible contents. Sections, chapters of works, and untitled commentaries are not given in the Index, unless a section is considered important enough to be listed as a separate text. This exclusion seemed proper because of the strict alphabetical arrangement of the list not only for main titles but also for sections thereunder. Commentaries are not listed under their texts or vice versa, but only in their own alphabetical position. Again consultation of the list itself will supply the facts. Different texts with the same title may be listed under one entry in the Index. Their position and description in the list will determine their contents. This is true also of authors, mutatis mutandis. The names of copyists, sires of authors, etc. are included. Authors and titles not featured but merely referred to in an article are given, with the list number in parentheses.

The Index of Scripts should have an obvious use to scholars of special sub-departments of Indology, and the Index of Illustrated Manuscripts should give quick reference for students of Indian Miniature painting.

7117. Charms, etc. Sinhalese script. 14 ff. Palm leaves with decorated wood covers, tying cord, and button. 5.5 × 1.9. 8-9 lines. Typed description with this manuscript reads as follows: Pages 1 and 2 contain a charm for prevention of illness. Page 3 is blank.Pages 4-24 contain magic diagrams and figures of demons to be propitiated. Page 25 contains a prescription: Take seed of Madu, (Cycas cirinalis. N. O. Cycadeae), tube of Kohilla (Basia spinosa, N. O. Araceae), bark of Ehela (Cassia fistula, N. O. Lehuminoseae), dry in sun, pound and make a flour, mix bee's honey after cooking by steaming, make into balls the size of domba fruit - a treatment for piles. Last part of page 25 and page 26 contain the following: The Viṣṇukumba tree sprang up when Buddhā's mother visited a certain vihara; if you water the seed with water from a golden jub, it will grow quickly, the root is as poisonous as a tic-polonga (Russel's viper), the stem as poisonous as a cobra, the branches as a female cobra, the leaves as poisonous as a teli serpent (puff-adder), the flowers as poisonous as a krait, the fruit as poisonous as a venemous spider: Applying the pounded fruit will remove spider-poison, the flowers the krait-poison, the leaves that of a puff-adder, the branches that of the female cobra, and root that of the polonga. Therefore, if you unknowingly eat of this tree, I know the charm and can do the charm. Praise be to the gods Śakra and Brahma. Last page: 2 charms to be enclosed in holders and used as amulets; one to be tied round the waist as a charm against any human enemy; the other to be worn on the arm as an amulet against any devil. In both the words are occult expressions of potency. M (Medical Library) 130 (Casey Wood number).

ERRATA

List numbers 311-2 should follow list number 277.
List numbers 1788 and 4117-8 should be listed contiguously, the text of 4117 being the same as that of 1788.
List number 1800 should follow 1685. It is the Maṅgalāṣṭaka by Kālidāsa and not by Śaṃkara.
List number 1820 should follow 4104, since it is the same text.
List numbers 1858 and 2122 are identical items.
List numbers 2190-1 should follow 3493-6, although this text is sometimes classified under Miscellaneous Kāvya as, e.g., in the India Office Catalogue.
List numbers 2436, 2647, and 2742 should be listed contiguously under either Grammar or Lexicons. (Vihāri Kṛṣṇadāsa = Kṛṣṇadāsa.)
List number 2474 is probably Jinendrabudhi's Kāśikāvivaraṇapañjikā or Kāśikāvṛttinyāsa rather than Jayāditya's and Vāmana's Kāśikāvṛtti.
List numbers 2854 and 4375-7 should be listed contiguously.
List number 3646 is a commentary on Annambhaṭṭa's Tarkasaṃgraha and should follow 3627.
List number 4363 should follow 3888.
List number 4736 should follow 3101-2.
List number 4769 should follow 4765.
List number 4770 should follow 4763.
List number 6057 should follow 6081.
List number 6112 should follow 6086.
List number 6250 should follow 6233.
List numbers 6838 and 6931 are identical items.
Pāñcarātra is misplaced in the Index of Authors and Titles in the alphabetical position of Pañca°.
