INTRODUCTION

I have great pleasure in presenting to the students of Oriental learning this third volume of Descriptive Catalogue of Sanskrit Manuscripts, entitled UPADHYE COLLECTION, kept in the custody of Vaidika Samshodhana Mandala, Pune-37.

Earlier two volumes of this project were published in 1974 and 1978.

Originally, we intended to publish only three volumes of Catalogue of Manuscripts belonging to the Mandala, but the increasing number of manuscripts have obliged us to change the original plan.

Our well-wishers and friends Shri. Anantrao Balkrishna Upadhye and Shri. Durgaram Balkrishna Upadhye of KERI ( Goa ) had in 1978-79 donated to the Mandala a large Collection of Manuscripts which came down to them as their precious family heritage. Even a cursory look to the contents may reveal that the collection is very rich, not only from the point of the large number of manuscripts it possesses, but also from the point of the topics it covers. It is really astonishing that a collection of a single family would possess the manuscripts pertaining to such a large number of topics of divergent interest. This speaks of the glorious hereditary scholarship of Upadhye family, which, fortunately has descended even to the present generation. We have really no words to adequately express our deep and sincere sense of gratitude towards Upadhye Brothers, for their kind gift of manuscripts made to the Mandala.

The Manuscripts described in this volume are classified according to the topics as indicated in the CONTENTS. The individual character of each manuscript has been, as far as possible, described in the last column. The extracts of some important manuscripts have been noted in Appendix. The Indices of Titles, Alternate titles, Authors, commentators, etc. may enhance the utility of this catalogue.

While concluding I express my sincere thanks to my colleague Mrs. S. R. Abhyankar, M. A. who with her intrinsic aptitude for fundamental research, has ably helped me in compiling and editing of this volume.

It is gratifying to note that, since June 1983, the Mandala has been brought by the Central Ministry of Education, under the Scheme of Adarsha Sanskrit Shodha Samstha ( Ideal Sanskrit Research Institute ). We record our deep sense of gratitude to the Central Ministry of Education for this recognition and also for the kind grant sanctioned for the editing and publishing of this volume.

APPENDIX

Extracts from Important Manuscripts

[ The opening and colophons of many extra-ordinary manuscripts have already been included in the eleventh column provided for additional particulars of manuscripts. This appendix, therefore, contains the extracts from few other important manuscripts, which could not be described in the relevant column, for want of adequate space. ]

The Colophons of Ms. ( 984 ) 12750, and ( 985 ) 12756; state that the author of the treatise Ṣaṭpañcāśatikā, and the commentary thereon is Bhaṭṭa Utpala. Pr̥thuyaśas appears to be the adjective qualifying Bhaṭṭa Utpala, the illustrious son of Varāhamihira. However late S. B. Dixit in his Bhāratiya Jyotiḥśāstra ( in Marathi ) page 485 - States ' Pr̥thuyaśas the son of Varāha-mihira composed Ṣaṭpañcāśikā, which is commented upon by Utpala — thus suggesting that Pr̥thuyaśas and Utpala were two different personalities.
